As a prelude to the many sports that inade up the programme eighteen Giants divided into two teams, romped about the diamond, batted out home runs off the delivery of slabmen chosen from the back field, carried their bases with them when they desired a rest and altogether had a merry time of it.

The two teams were designated the Hoboes and the Wearles. Browne pitched for the Hoboes and Mertes caught. Gilbert Mathewson, McGann, Donlin, Devlin, Warner and Dunn frisked about the in and out fields.

The Wearles put Jewett on the slab, with Dummy Taylor as backstop. Wiltse, Elliott, Bowerman, McGinnity, Marshall, Tuthill and Ames filled in the

HIGHLANDERS NOW

ST. LOUIS. Mo., Oct. 6.-Before leaving for home Clark Griffith, manager of the New York American League baseball nine, issued the following challenge to the Boston management for a post-season series of games. The challenge follows:

'James J. Collins, Manager and Captain, Boston World's Champions: "As the New York Nationals, who are the only team that have a right to play you for the biggest laurels, seem unwilling to play ball, the New York Highlanders hereby challenge the Boston world's champions to a series games, best three out of five. Should we win the American League chamwe win the American League championship we still wish to play off for the world's laurels. That prize, by beating Pittsburg last fall, Boston still holds. We will let the American League flag and your world's flag go with all the highest honors of diamond-dom if we win the final series of the American League race of 1904.

FROM WILLIAMS

BALTIMORE, Md., Oct. 6.-In one of the best and cleanly-contested bouts held here for some time "Tommy" Daly, of New York, was given the decision over "Kid" Williams, of Philadelphia, after ten rounds of hard fighting before the Eureka Athletic Club.

While Daly had the better of the bout, being the more aggressive, Williams put up an excellent fight, and many of the spectators thought that he was entitled to a draw. The hostilities began from the start, and it was hardly a minute old when Williams went to the floor from a right-hand swing to the jaw, but he recuperated quickly. Twice more during the fight he was sent to the canvas. Both men landed hard and often. Williams played for the face almost entirely, while Daly played alternately for the face and stomach. In the eighth round both men had their left eves split and were bleeding freely as they went to their corners.

In the ninth and tenth rounds the men fought in whirlwind fashion, Daly having the advantage. Both men were fighting hard at the finish. over "Kid" Williams, of Philadelphia,
